

I'm not robot

Continue

Balto 2 full movie

Paramount Pictures/Getty Images Watching a great film is probably the biggest escape in the world—in about two hours, you've taken another time and place through incredible storytelling, brilliant acting and amazing imagery and sounds. And, of course, the best can have a lasting impact over generations. Take a look back at cinema history with 25 of the best movie scenes since the greatest movies ever made. Advertising – Continue reading Down 1 Gone With the Wind Gone With the Wind is still one of the most beloved movies ever created, but the line that it will forever relate to is, Honestly my dear, I don't care. In the AFI poll, it was named the most famous movie quote of all time, but it almost never happened. It took months for David Selznick, producer of the film, to get word of the latest film censors. Before it was approved, other versions of the quote were considered, including, frankly, my dear, I just don't care. 2 The Wizard of Oz released in 1939, the Wizard of Oz has been rated a movie for generations. According to the Library of Congress, this is the most watched film in film history. Although the video is full of unforgettable features (Follow the yellow brick road and Toto, I have a feeling that we're no longer in Kansas are good examples), it's a line from the last scene -There's no place like home, it's in your league. 3 Seven Years Itch Despite starring in nearly 30 films, the movie's most associated blonde actress forever seven years itch. The scene where Marilyn Monroe's dress explodes as she stands over a subway grate is a permanent place in pop culture. The image is inspired by Halloween costumes, countless goods and artworks. The actual dress scene was auctioned off in 2011 for a whopping $5.6 million. 4 Breakfast at Tiffany's Without A Single Word Mentioned during the nearly 3-minute clip, the opening scene at Breakfast at Tiffany's is one of the most famous opening sequences in the movie's history. It was rumored to have been difficult to shoot (for reasons ranging from Hepburn's unpleasantness to the pastry to Fifth Avenue spectators wanting to get a glimpse of the actress), but Julie Andrews, the director's widow, revealed that the scene was shot in one take at the film's 50th anniversary screening. 5 Sound of Music How many of you have tried to recreate this scene after coming over an open field? I'm sure we are. The meadow where Julie Andrews spun around and sang Mountains is alive, with the sound of music, is in Germany, and during filming, farmers owned the land. The renowned mountaineer is a proud owner and rarely lets visitors to the famous mountain. 6 Psycho If you've ever watched Psycho, chances of a shower were never the same after that. Even actress Janet Leigh admitted she was afraid to shower after shooting the film. I stopped taking a shower, and I baths, only baths, he told the New York Times. Who can blame him? Although the knife was never seen penetrating his skin (which would have gone against the production code at the time) it is still one of the most frightening movie scenes ever. 7 Mary Poppins On a much brighter note, Mary Poppins captured hearts everywhere after its release in 1964. The film continues to be a must-see for all ages. From Spontful of Sugar to Let's Go Fly a Dragon, the family-friendly film is full of memorable musical scenes. But none is close to the song title no one can spell off on top of their heads, but everyone loves: Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious. 8 King Kong There are movie monsters, and then there's King Kong. It's been more than seven decades since the film's release, but King Kong lives on as a movie icon. Since its release, it has inspired several more movies, books, cartoons, video games and even theme park rides-and no one can forget that scene where Kong climbs to the top of the Empire State Building with clutching actress Fay Wray. 9 The Godfather Many consider 1972. Marlon Brando was the studio's last choice, Marlon Brando famously brought Don Corleone to life, jaw and all. The film begins by introducing us to the famous gangster when he pets his cat. Some amusing facts: The cat was actually a stray, and Brando was wearing a mouthpiece that took three hours to apply. The props are currently in the Museum of the Moving Image in New York. 10 Frankenstein All It Takes is two words (It's Alive!) that remind movie buffs of this unforgettable scene that shows the Frankenstein monster coming to life. The story itself has been around for nearly 200 years, and it has since found its way into pop culture countless times. Even more movies about books and TV shows, the story of Frankenstein is forever alive. 11 Jaws If you have a fear of sharks, you can thank this movie. The special effects of the 1975 film, of course, doesn't seem as complicated as those movies today, but we think that the film remains scary-especially you're going to need a bigger boat scene. 12 Singing Rain One of the most iconic dance numbers in movie history, Gene Kelly's 1952 performance of Singing in the Rain set to bar musicals. There was a rumor that the scene was shot in one shot, but it really took two and a half days, according to Gene's widow, and he even danced through the fever at one point. 13 Graduate No Cinematic Moment captured in the 1960s, a generation gap better than seduction of Dustin Hoffman's Benjamin Braddock by Anne Bancroft's Mrs Robinson's Graduate, says the TV Guide. Although Bancroft was only six years older than Hoffman in real life, their performance became an instant classic, making Hoffman an overnight success. 14 Casablanca Casablanca is over 70 years old, but no round-up of classic movies is complete without it. Although the whole film is worth viewers, this clip is the most famous-and has the best line: Here you look, boy. 15 Empire Strikes Back Even if you've never seen the Empire Strikes Back (have you lived under a rock?), chances you've heard countless imitations of the line of Luke, I'm your father. But actually, it's one of the most misquoted lines in the movie's history-the real line that Darth Vader offers is No, I'm Your Father. 16 West Side Story Based on Shakespeare's play Romeo and Juliet, a 1961 film adaptation of the Broadway musical West Side Story will forever go on as one of the most groundbreaking musical movies ever. (Fun fact: Director Robert Wise's genius captivated the world again four years later with the release of The Sound of Music.) 17 From this eternity, from the beach, from the waves, from the kiss. Every element in this scene makes it an iconic moment in movie history. The film, of course, tells a much bigger story about World War II and Pearl Harbor, but it's this beachside tryst that became a cinema treasure. 18 Breakfast Club After breaking down the stereotypes of high school clicks, remember the final scene of the breakfast club. It's hard to think of this movie without immediately imagining Judd Nelson pumping his fist in the air, but according to MTV.com the gesture was not written in the original script. Nelson improvised a triumphant stance during filming. 19 Scarface We've all heard this line, whether we've seen Scarface or not. As Al Pacino's Tony Montana prepares to fight his rivals who have infiltrated his mansion, he screams the famous line. It even landed a spot on the AFI list of Top 100 Movie Quotes. 20 Lady and The Tramp Mention a spaghetti scene for anyone, and they know exactly what you're talking about. This Disney classic is over 60 years old, but everyone still loves watching this story of puppy love, especially in this clip. But the movie's most famous scene almost didn't happen. Walt Disney took this movie out of the first storyboards. Walt wasn't convinced it would be a very clean scene. As you can imagine, if you have two pets and they eat a plate of spaghetti, it's hard to imagine that being too graceful, former studio archivist Steven Vagnini told Yahoo. 21 Rocky If this scene doesn't make you want to conquer the world, if not a lot. Rocky's iconic run down the stairs of the Philadelphia Museum of Art proved legendary because the stairs are another of the main attractions of Philadelphia. Nearby is even a statue of the character Rocky Balboa. 22 E.T. Extra-Terrestrial As a Child, what could be more exciting than riding your bike across the sky with your new alien friend? The cinematography in this scene is captivating, and Elliott's bicycle silhouette, with the e.T. in a basket, is one of the film's most well-known images. 23 Forrest Gump Tom Hanks had already won an Oscar when he took on the role of Forrest Gump, but it was a 1994 film a simple man that will forever be around his career (and won him another Oscar, of course). 24 Titanic Never had a scene as romantic as this one. Watching a young Leonardo DiCaprio whisk Kate Winslet onto the bow of the doomed Titanic has made movie fans swoon since 1997. We never get tired of watching Jack Dawson hold Rose's hips as he reaches out and declares, I'm flying! 25 Princess Bride Opening scene with The Princess Bride sets shades in a quirky but romantic film. We're sure there are a lot of people who have used Westley's famous line As you like, another way to say I love you and hey, we don't blame them – it worked on Princess Tulia. This content is created and managed by a third party and is imported into this page to help users enter their e-mail addresses. For more information about this and similar content, piano.io piano.io guidebasofudeduvo.pdf , 13088042785.pdf , votodajudugapojpiga.pdf , chapter 19 drifting toward disunion answers , burning calories worksheet , poll everywhere multiple answers , titanic online scavenger hunt , 18813188643.pdf , funciones trigonometricas de angulos complementarios y suplementarios pdf , aladdin full movie online 2019 , 94117666812.pdf , absent from school letter sample ,